

Relative Signal Loss of a perfect 1-inch cube caused by thermal gradients

The signal loss in the angular range 30 to 40 μrad is reasonably small even in case 16 (140 °C)
The curvature of the wave front is opposite to the earlear temperature fields 1 to 14.
Therefore the cube corners with slightly positive offset angles should be preferred.

